Lovers Drown.

As has been stated in the Gazette, Miss Mabel Pendleton, of Waynesboro, Va., committed suicide at an early hour yesterday morning by leaping from a suspension bridge that connects Clifton Forge with a subortion settlement, and her lover, Stuart Gay, in an effort to save the life of his sweetheart, was also drowned. The young woman was heart-broken because her plans to wed had neen frustrated. The young couple left Clifton Force at midnight Wednesday night en route for Washington with the Sone root is also recommended by Drs.

dleton leaped to the water, about 30 feet below. Mr. Gay reached out to save her, but his grasp was cluded and in a twink-ling her body was floating down the atream. Gay then climbed over the railing and suspended himself from a beam and dropped into the water. He swam to the side of the girl. She stretched out her hands and clasped him about the neck, and in an instant both were drowned.

Efforts to locate the bodies so far have been fruitless. The river is very deep and swift at the point, and it is feared that their bodies were washed some distance down stream.

Miss Pendleton's home was at Waynes boro, although she had spent most of her life in Clifton Forge with her sister. Miss Pendleton's very tender age was the cause of the objection to her marriage. Gay was also in his seventeenth He was a son of C. S. Gay, of year. He was a son of C. S. Gay, or Clifton Forge, a well-known passenger conductor on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway. Young Gay was employed by the Chesapeake and Ohio at the time of his untimely death.

The eogineer and train crew found two sticks of dynamite near the track. Examination of the track at this point showed the men were also provided with fish plates and spike bars, as well as some tools used in track-laying. The men had not had the opportunity to do any damage, but it is believed they intended to remove the fish plates from the rails without breaking the bond wires which control the automatic signal system. Then, it is believed, they intended to plant dynamite. The attempt may have been designed against the Lehigh Valley Express, which passes that point about 9 o'clock. A dezen detectives were put at work on the case.

Earthquake Shocks.

A dispatch from London says that Prof. Belar, of the Laibach Observatory, telegraphs that a great earthquake began at 10:15 last night mid-European time. The center of the disturbance was apparently 6,250 miles distant. Milne, the well-known English seismologist, states that his instruments recorded a large earthquake, beginning at 9:10 Wednesday night. It reached its maximum intensity at 10:05, and continued for a long time afterward. Mr. Milne tentatively estimates that it was 5,400 miles distant, probably in Mexico or the northern part of South America. There were two earthquake shocks at Manila this morning. The first occurred a 5:07:50. No damage was done.

Advices from Buenos Ayres say that the Payebue volcano continues in full eruption, severe explosions occurring every two or three hours. Big areas of land especially on the Chilean side, have been buried in lava. All the neighboring villages have been abandoned. Great Monster Battleships.

Secretary Metcalf, of the Navy Department, yesterday alternoon approved the plans and specifications of the Bureau of Construction and Repair for the two monster 20,000-ton battleships authorized by Congress at its last session. Plans for both ships are identical, and it is understood that they do not differ rad-ically from the plans for the first ship authorized, drawn up by the naval con-structors and submitted to Congress, ex-cept that the ships are made a few feet longer to provide sufficient room for en-gines and boilers. It is understood that they call for a speed of 20 knots.
